WO 02/05287 fails to show or suggest the limitation of by further applying in a second addressing operation the second voltage pulse to one or more data storage cells in another segment, such that the cell or cells are preset to either the first polarization state or the second polarization state; and dependent on the addressing operation to be carried out, storing information in the one or more preset data storage cells in the other segment after an active voltage pulse with the same polarity has been applied thereto; the another segment being selected for the second addressing operation on the basis of prior and/or scheduled application of active voltage pulses to the two or more electrically separated segments.
